Smart dialing About smart dialing You can change smart-dialing options to specify a default country code and area code for phone numbers. If you specify a default country code and area code, when you make calls, you only need to dial a country code and area code when the codes differ from the codes that you specified in the smart-dialing options. In the smart-dialing options, you can also specify the main phone number for an organization that you call frequently. If you specify a phone number for an organization, you can call a contact at the organization quickly by dialing the contact's extension only. Likewise, when you add a contact from the organization to your contact list, you only need to type the contact's extension.

Your wireless service provider has provided you with a phone number, and your organization has provided you with a BlackBerry® MVS Client phone number. If you have more than one phone number associated with your device, you can switch the phone number that you use as your active phone number. You can receive calls to all phone numbers that are associated with your device, but you make calls using your active phone number only. For example, you cannot place one call on hold and make a second call using another phone number. If your SIM card supports more than one phone number, and you are on a call, you cannot receive a call from the phone number that you are not using.

Any calls to the phone number that you are not using will receive a busy signal or will be sent to voice mail. If you have a BlackBerry MVS Client phone number and another phone number, you can receive calls to either phone number even when you are on a call. You can change call waiting, call forwarding, and voice mail options for each phone number associated with your device. Switch the active phone number You can make calls using another phone number that is associated with your BlackBerry® device by switching the active phone number.
